NEXORA TECHNOLOGIES PVT. LTD.

EMPLOYEE HANDBOOK

Handbook Version: 2.0
Effective Date: 1 August 2026
Document Owner: People & Culture Department
Applies To: All regular employees of Nexora Technologies Pvt. Ltd.

Welcome to Nexora

Welcome to Nexora Technologies Pvt. Ltd.

Nexora is a technology company focused on building software products and digital solutions for businesses across multiple industries. We believe that our people are central to our success and are committed to providing a professional, inclusive, collaborative, and respectful workplace.

This Employee Handbook provides employees with information about the company's workplace policies, procedures, benefits, expectations, and employee responsibilities.

The handbook is intended to serve as a practical reference for employees throughout their employment with Nexora.

1. Purpose of the Employee Handbook

The purpose of this handbook is to provide employees with a clear understanding of Nexora's employment policies and workplace practices.

The handbook covers areas including:

- Working hours and attendance
- Leave and holidays
- Remote and hybrid work
- Compensation and payroll
- Employee benefits
- Workplace conduct
- Information security
- Performance management
- Employee grievances
- Disciplinary procedures
- Resignation and separation

Employees are expected to read and understand the policies applicable to their role.

2. Scope and Applicability

Unless a policy specifically states otherwise, the policies in this handbook apply to all regular full-time and part-time employees of Nexora Technologies Pvt. Ltd.

Certain policies may have different requirements for:

- Employees on probation

- Interns and trainees
- Contract employees
- Employees working in client locations
- Employees assigned to international projects

Where a specific employment agreement, applicable law, or formally issued company policy provides a different requirement, the applicable agreement, law, or policy will take precedence.

2.1 Using This Handbook

This handbook is intended as a general guide and does not contain every rule or procedure applicable to employees.

Employees should refer to the relevant policy section before making decisions related to leave, attendance, expenses, company equipment, information security, or other employment matters.

For questions that are not addressed in this handbook, employees may contact the People & Culture Department through the official employee support channel.

2.2 Policy Updates

Nexora may review and update its policies when business requirements, operational practices, or applicable laws change.

Employees will be informed of material policy changes through official company communication channels.

The latest officially published version of the Employee Handbook should be treated as the current version.

2.3 Important Notice

This handbook is a company policy reference document and should not be interpreted as a complete employment contract.

Nothing in this handbook overrides applicable laws or an employee's signed employment agreement.

Employees are responsible for complying with the policies applicable to their employment and role.

3. Employment Basics

3.1 Employment Categories

Nexora Technologies Pvt. Ltd. classifies employees into the following categories:

Employment Category	Description
Regular Full-Time Employee	An employee working the standard full-time schedule under a regular employment agreement.
Regular Part-Time Employee	An employee working fewer hours than the standard full-time schedule under a part-time employment agreement.
Probationary Employee	A newly hired employee undergoing the company's initial assessment period before confirmation.
Intern	A student or recent graduate engaged for a defined learning and work experience period.
Trainee	An individual engaged in a structured training program before being assigned to a regular role.
Fixed-Term Employee	An employee hired for a specified period under a fixed-term employment agreement.
Contract Employee	An individual engaged through a third-party staffing or contracting organization.

The benefits, leave entitlements, working arrangements, and other employment conditions may differ depending on the employee's employment category.

Where a policy applies only to a particular employment category, the applicable category will be stated explicitly.

3.2 Joining and Onboarding

All newly hired employees must complete the company's onboarding process.

The onboarding process may include:

1. Submission and verification of required employment documents.
2. Creation of company email and system accounts.
3. Completion of mandatory HR and compliance forms.
4. Completion of information security and data protection training.
5. Introduction to the employee's department and reporting manager.
6. Completion of role-specific onboarding activities.

Employees are expected to provide accurate and complete information during onboarding.

Failure to provide required documentation may delay onboarding activities or access to company systems.

3.3 Probation Period

Newly hired regular employees are generally placed on probation for six months from their date of joining.

The probation period is intended to allow Nexora and the employee to evaluate:

- Job performance
- Technical and functional capabilities
- Attendance and punctuality
- Workplace conduct
- Ability to work effectively with the team
- Adherence to company policies

The reporting manager may provide feedback during the probation period and may recommend confirmation, extension of probation, or other appropriate action.

3.4 Extension of Probation

The standard probation period may be extended when additional time is required to evaluate an employee's performance or suitability for the role.

A probation extension may be recommended for reasons including:

- Performance concerns
- Insufficient opportunity to evaluate the employee
- Extended absence during the probation period
- Significant changes in role or responsibilities

Any extension will be communicated to the employee through an official company communication.

The employee will receive the revised probation end date and, where applicable, expectations that must be met during the extended period.

3.5 Confirmation of Employment

An employee who successfully completes probation may be confirmed as a regular employee.

Confirmation is not automatic solely because the probation period has ended. The employee must receive formal confirmation from the company.

The confirmation decision may consider performance, conduct, attendance, and feedback from the employee's reporting manager.

Employees should retain their confirmation communication for their employment records.

3.6 Employee Information and Records

Employees are responsible for ensuring that their personal and employment information maintained by Nexora is accurate and up to date.

Employees should promptly inform the People & Culture Department of changes to information such as:

- Residential address
- Personal contact number
- Emergency contact
- Bank account information
- Government identification information
- Educational qualifications
- Marital or dependent information where required for benefits administration

Employees must not knowingly provide false, misleading, or fraudulent information to the company.

3.7 Internal Transfers

Employees may apply for or be considered for transfer to another department, team, project, or company location based on business requirements and available opportunities.

An internal transfer may require:

- Approval from the current reporting manager
- Approval from the receiving manager
- Verification of the employee's eligibility
- Completion of the internal transfer process

Approval of a transfer is subject to business requirements and is not guaranteed solely because an employee meets the stated eligibility criteria.

The effective date of an approved transfer will be communicated to the employee.

3.8 Changes in Job Role

Nexora may modify an employee's responsibilities based on business requirements, organizational changes, project requirements, or career development considerations.

Where a substantial change to an employee's role affects their employment terms, the company will communicate the applicable changes through the appropriate formal process.

Employees are expected to cooperate with reasonable changes in responsibilities that fall within the scope of their employment.

3.9 Work Location

Employees are assigned a primary work location when they join Nexora.

Depending on business requirements, employees may be required to work:

- From a designated Nexora office
- Under an approved hybrid arrangement
- From a client location
- From another company-approved work location

Employees must comply with the work-location requirements applicable to their role and team.

Working from a location that has not been approved by the company may require prior authorization from the employee's reporting manager and, where applicable, the People & Culture Department.

3.10 Employee Identification

Each employee is assigned a unique Employee ID during onboarding.

The Employee ID may be used for:

- HR records
- Attendance systems
- Internal applications
- Payroll-related processes
- Employee support requests
- Access to company facilities

Employees must not share their employee credentials or authentication information with another person.

3.11 Attendance During Probation

Employees on probation are expected to meet the same attendance and working-hour requirements applicable to their assigned role unless otherwise specified in their employment agreement or applicable policy.

Repeated unexplained absence, late attendance, or failure to follow attendance procedures may be considered during the probation review.

3.12 Employment Agreements

Employees will receive an employment agreement or appointment documentation specifying the terms applicable to their employment.

The employment agreement may contain information such as:

- Job title
- Compensation
- Employment category

- Probation period
- Notice requirements
- Primary work location
- Benefits and applicable conditions

Employees should review their employment agreement carefully and contact the People & Culture Department if they require clarification regarding their employment terms.

3.13 Background Verification

Nexora may conduct background verification before or after an employee joins the company, subject to applicable laws and company procedures.

Verification may include validation of information such as:

- Educational qualifications
- Previous employment
- Professional certifications
- Identity documents
- Other information relevant to the employee's role

Employees are expected to cooperate with legitimate verification requests.

Material misrepresentation or submission of fraudulent documents may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment, subject to applicable law.

3.14 Employee Responsibilities

Every employee is expected to:

1. Perform assigned responsibilities professionally and responsibly.
2. Follow company policies and procedures.
3. Maintain accurate personal and employment information.
4. Protect company property and confidential information.
5. Maintain professional workplace conduct.
6. Complete mandatory training within the required timelines.
7. Report workplace concerns through appropriate channels.
8. Cooperate with reasonable company processes and requests.

Failure to meet these responsibilities may result in corrective or disciplinary action depending on the circumstances.

3.15 Questions Regarding Employment Status

Questions regarding an employee's employment category, probation status, confirmation, transfer, or employment records should be directed to the People & Culture Department.

Employees should refer to their individual employment agreement for terms that are specific to their employment.

Where this handbook and an employee's signed employment agreement contain different provisions, the applicable employment agreement will govern the employee's contractual terms, subject to applicable law.

4. Working Hours and Attendance

4.1 Standard Working Hours

The standard working schedule for full-time employees at Nexora Technologies is 40 hours per week, generally distributed across five working days from Monday to Friday.

The standard office working hours are:

9:30 AM to 6:30 PM

Employees are generally expected to be available during their assigned working hours unless they have an approved alternative work arrangement.

Working hours may vary for employees who:

- Work in shifts
- Support international clients
- Work at client locations
- Have an approved flexible working arrangement
- Are assigned to projects requiring different schedules

The applicable schedule will be communicated by the employee's reporting manager.

4.2 Working Days

The standard working week consists of five working days.

Saturday and Sunday are normally non-working days unless an employee is assigned to a shift, client project, production support activity, or another business requirement that requires weekend work.

Employees required to work on a scheduled non-working day will be informed by their reporting manager in advance wherever reasonably possible.

4.3 Attendance Recording

Employees must record their attendance using the attendance system designated by Nexora.

Depending on the employee's work arrangement, attendance may be recorded through:

- The company's attendance portal
- An approved employee application

- Office access systems
- Another system designated by the company

Employees are responsible for ensuring that their attendance records are accurate.

Employees must not record attendance on behalf of another employee or allow another person to record attendance on their behalf.

4.4 Daily Attendance Requirement

Employees are expected to report to work and complete their assigned working hours on scheduled working days.

Employees working from an office are expected to be physically present at their designated workplace unless they have an approved remote or hybrid arrangement.

Employees working remotely must remain available through approved communication and collaboration tools during their scheduled working hours.

Failure to remain available during scheduled working hours without an approved reason may be treated as an attendance concern.

4.5 Punctuality

Employees are expected to begin work at their scheduled start time.

For employees following the standard schedule, the expected start time is 9:30 AM.

Occasional delays caused by unforeseen circumstances should be communicated to the reporting manager as soon as reasonably possible.

Repeated late arrival may result in a discussion with the reporting manager and may be considered during performance or attendance reviews.

4.6 Grace Period

Nexora provides a 15-minute grace period for occasional delays in arrival.

For employees following the standard 9:30 AM start time, arrival by 9:45 AM will generally fall within the grace period.

The grace period is intended for occasional unforeseen delays and should not be treated as a revised daily start time.

Repeatedly relying on the grace period may be considered a punctuality concern.

The grace period does not eliminate the employee's responsibility to complete the required working hours.

4.7 Missed Attendance Entry

If an employee forgets to record attendance, the employee must submit an attendance correction request through the designated attendance system.

The request should normally be submitted within two working days of the missed entry.

The employee's reporting manager may be required to approve the correction.

Repeated missed attendance entries may be reviewed by the employee's manager or People & Culture Department.

4.8 Absence Reporting

Employees who are unable to attend work must inform their reporting manager as soon as reasonably possible.

Where the absence is planned, the employee should obtain approval in advance according to the applicable leave policy.

For unexpected absence, the employee should notify the reporting manager before the scheduled start of work whenever reasonably possible.

Failure to report an absence may result in the absence being treated as unauthorized.

4.9 Breaks

Employees are entitled to reasonable breaks during the working day.

Under the standard schedule, employees generally receive:

- One meal break of up to 60 minutes
- Short personal breaks as reasonably required

Employees should coordinate breaks with their team when necessary to ensure that business operations and customer commitments are not affected.

Break periods should not be used to regularly extend the working day beyond the scheduled end time.

4.10 Flexible Working Hours

Certain employees may be eligible for flexible working hours depending on their role and team requirements.

Flexible working arrangements must be approved by the employee's reporting manager.

Approval may depend on factors including:

- Team coverage
- Client requirements
- Business operations
- Employee responsibilities
- Meeting schedules

Flexible working hours do not automatically reduce the employee's required weekly working hours.

4.11 Overtime

Employees may occasionally be required to work beyond their normal working hours due to urgent business requirements, production incidents, client commitments, or critical project deadlines.

Where overtime approval is required, employees must obtain approval from their reporting manager before performing planned overtime.

Compensation or time-off arrangements for overtime will depend on the employee's employment category, applicable company policy, and applicable law.

Employees should not assume that working additional hours automatically creates an entitlement to overtime compensation.

4.12 Weekend and Holiday Work

Employees may occasionally be required to work on weekends or company holidays due to business requirements.

Where reasonably possible, the employee's manager will communicate such requirements in advance.

Eligible employees may receive compensatory time off or other applicable benefits in accordance with company policy and applicable law.

Employees should consult their reporting manager or People & Culture Department regarding eligibility for compensation or compensatory time off.

4.13 Shift-Based Work

Employees assigned to shift-based roles must follow the shift schedule communicated by their reporting manager.

Shift schedules may include:

- Morning shifts
- Evening shifts
- Night shifts
- Rotational shifts

Employees are expected to report for their assigned shift on time.

Requests to exchange shifts with another employee require approval from the appropriate manager before the change takes effect.

4.14 Attendance During Remote Work

Employees working remotely are expected to maintain the same level of professional availability and accountability as employees working from the office.

Remote employees must:

- Be available during scheduled working hours.
- Attend required meetings.
- Respond to work-related communications within a reasonable time.
- Maintain a suitable working environment.
- Follow company information security requirements.
- Use approved company systems for work activities.

Remote work does not mean that employees may freely change their working hours without approval.

4.15 Unapproved Absence

An absence may be considered unauthorized when an employee:

- Does not report to work without informing the company.
- Fails to obtain required leave approval.
- Does not provide required documentation for an absence.
- Remains absent after approved leave has ended without authorization.

Unauthorized absence may result in loss of pay and/or disciplinary action depending on the circumstances and applicable policy.

4.16 Extended Absence

Employees who expect to be unavailable for an extended period should inform their reporting manager and People & Culture Department as early as possible.

The employee may be required to provide supporting documentation depending on the reason for the absence.

For extended leave, employees should ensure that important responsibilities are appropriately handed over before the leave begins whenever reasonably possible.

4.17 Attendance and Performance Reviews

Attendance and punctuality may be considered as part of an employee's overall performance and conduct assessment.

Attendance alone will not determine an employee's performance rating.

However, repeated unexplained absence, habitual late arrival, failure to follow attendance procedures, or prolonged unavailability may result in corrective action.

4.18 Attendance Disputes

Employees who believe their attendance record is incorrect should first raise the issue through the designated attendance correction process.

If the issue is not resolved, the employee may contact the People & Culture Department.

Employees should retain relevant supporting information, such as approved leave requests or manager communications, when raising an attendance dispute.

4.19 Attendance Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for:

1. Recording attendance accurately.
2. Following their assigned working schedule.
3. Informing their manager about unexpected absence or delays.
4. Obtaining approval for planned leave and schedule changes.
5. Correcting missed attendance entries within the required timeline.
6. Remaining available during scheduled working hours.
7. Following applicable remote-work and attendance procedures.

Managers are responsible for ensuring that attendance-related concerns are handled consistently and fairly within their teams.

5. Leave and Holidays

5.1 Overview

Nexora Technologies provides eligible employees with paid and unpaid leave to support personal needs, health, family responsibilities, and planned time away from work.

Employees are expected to use leave responsibly and follow the applicable approval and documentation procedures.

Leave entitlements may vary depending on an employee's employment category, length of service, and applicable law.

Unless otherwise specified, leave is calculated based on the calendar year from 1 January to 31 December.

5.2 Types of Leave

Nexora provides the following primary categories of leave:

Leave Type	Annual Entitlement	General Purpose
Annual Leave	18 days	Planned personal or recreational time off

Leave Type	Annual Entitlement	General Purpose
Casual Leave	6 days	Short-term personal requirements
Sick Leave	10 days	Illness, medical appointments, or recovery
Bereavement Leave	Up to 5 days	Death of an immediate family member
Parental Leave	As applicable	Birth or adoption of a child
Unpaid Leave	Subject to approval	Extended absence when paid leave is unavailable

Additional leave may be provided where required by applicable law or a specific company policy.

5.3 Annual Leave

Eligible regular employees receive 18 days of Annual Leave per calendar year.

Annual Leave may be used for planned personal activities, vacations, family commitments, or other personal reasons.

Employees should generally submit Annual Leave requests at least five working days in advance.

Approval is subject to business requirements and team availability.

5.4 Annual Leave Carry-Forward

Employees may carry forward unused Annual Leave into the following calendar year.

A maximum of 10 unused Annual Leave days may be carried forward.

Any Annual Leave balance exceeding the permitted carry-forward limit will expire at the end of the calendar year unless applicable law or a specific company policy provides otherwise.

Example:

An employee has 14 unused Annual Leave days on 31 December.

- 10 days may be carried forward.
- The remaining 4 days will expire.

Employees are encouraged to plan their leave throughout the year rather than accumulating leave unnecessarily.

5.5 Annual Leave During the Joining Year

Employees who join Nexora during the calendar year receive a prorated Annual Leave entitlement.

The entitlement is calculated based on the employee's joining date and the remaining portion of the calendar year.

Employees should refer to their HR portal for their specific leave balance.

5.6 Casual Leave

Eligible employees receive 6 days of Casual Leave per calendar year.

Casual Leave is intended for short-term personal requirements that do not require extended time away from work.

Examples may include:

- Attending to urgent personal matters
- Family commitments
- Personal appointments
- Unexpected short-term requirements

Casual Leave should generally not be used for extended planned vacations.

Employees should request Casual Leave in advance whenever reasonably possible.

5.7 Casual Leave Rules

Casual Leave:

- Cannot normally be carried forward to the following calendar year.
- Cannot normally be converted into Annual Leave.
- Requires manager approval when advance approval is reasonably possible.
- May be subject to a minimum or maximum duration based on operational requirements.

Unused Casual Leave at the end of the calendar year will normally lapse.

5.8 Sick Leave

Eligible employees receive 10 days of Sick Leave per calendar year.

Sick Leave may be used when an employee is:

- Ill or recovering from an illness.
- Attending a medical appointment.
- Required to rest following medical advice.
- Unable to perform their normal duties due to illness.

Employees should inform their reporting manager as soon as reasonably possible when they are unable to work due to illness.

5.9 Medical Documentation

Nexora may request medical documentation when required to verify an extended or repeated period of Sick Leave.

A medical certificate may be requested when an employee takes more than three consecutive working days of Sick Leave.

Employees must submit requested documentation through the designated HR process within the specified timeline.

The company will handle employee medical information in accordance with applicable privacy requirements.

5.10 Sick Leave Carry-Forward

Unused Sick Leave does not normally carry forward to the following calendar year.

Unused Sick Leave will lapse at the end of the calendar year unless applicable law requires a different treatment.

Sick Leave cannot normally be exchanged for cash.

5.11 Emergency Leave

Employees may take leave for unexpected personal emergencies when immediate absence from work is necessary.

Examples include:

- A serious family emergency
- An unexpected incident requiring immediate personal attention
- Urgent situations that cannot reasonably be planned in advance

Employees should inform their reporting manager as soon as possible.

Emergency leave may be adjusted against an applicable leave balance depending on the circumstances.

5.12 Bereavement Leave

Employees may receive up to 5 working days of paid Bereavement Leave following the death of an immediate family member.

Immediate family members generally include:

- Spouse
- Parents
- Children
- Siblings

Additional leave may be considered based on individual circumstances and applicable law.

Employees should inform their reporting manager or People & Culture Department as soon as reasonably possible.

Documentation may be requested where required for administrative purposes.

5.13 Parental Leave

Eligible employees may receive parental leave following the birth or adoption of a child.

Parental Leave includes:

- Maternity Leave
- Paternity Leave
- Adoption-related leave

The duration and eligibility requirements for Parental Leave will be determined in accordance with applicable law and the company's current parental leave policy.

Employees should contact People & Culture before the expected leave period to understand the applicable entitlement and documentation requirements.

5.14 Unpaid Leave

Employees who require time away from work after exhausting applicable paid leave may request Unpaid Leave.

Unpaid Leave is not an automatic entitlement and requires approval.

Approval may depend on:

- Reason for the request
- Duration of absence
- Business requirements
- Employee's performance and attendance record
- Available leave balances
- Applicable employment terms

Employees should submit Unpaid Leave requests as early as possible.

5.15 Leave During Probation

Employees on probation may be eligible for leave according to the applicable leave policy and their employment terms.

However, employees should understand that taking leave during probation may affect the evaluation period where the absence significantly limits the company's ability to assess performance.

Where necessary, the probation period may be extended in accordance with the Employment Basics policy.

5.16 Leave Approval

Submitting a leave request does not automatically mean that the leave has been approved.

Employees must wait for the required approval before taking planned leave.

Leave requests may be declined or modified when business requirements make the requested period unavailable.

Employees should not make non-refundable travel or other commitments based solely on a submitted leave request.

5.17 Unplanned Absence

When an employee is unable to provide advance notice because of an unexpected situation, the employee should notify their reporting manager as soon as reasonably possible.

The employee should submit the appropriate leave request after the immediate situation has been addressed.

Failure to communicate an absence may result in the absence being treated as unauthorized.

5.18 Combining Different Types of Leave

Different leave categories may be combined when permitted by company policy and approved by the appropriate authority.

For example, an employee may be permitted to combine Annual Leave with Sick Leave when the relevant eligibility and documentation requirements are satisfied.

Employees should ensure that each leave category is recorded correctly in the HR system.

5.19 Public and Company Holidays

Nexora observes a designated holiday calendar each year.

The holiday calendar may include:

- National holidays
- Public holidays
- Regional holidays
- Company-designated holidays

The applicable holiday calendar may vary depending on the employee's assigned work location.

Employees should refer to the official holiday calendar published by People & Culture for the applicable year and location.

5.20 Holidays Falling During Leave

A company holiday that falls within an employee's approved period of Annual Leave will not normally be deducted from the employee's Annual Leave balance.

For example, if an employee takes Annual Leave from Monday through Friday and Wednesday is a designated company holiday, only four Annual Leave days will normally be deducted.

Different rules may apply to other leave categories where specified by company policy or applicable law.

5.21 Leave During Notice Period

Employees serving a notice period may request leave in accordance with the applicable leave policy.

Approval of leave during the notice period is subject to business requirements and the employee's manager.

Leave taken during the notice period may affect the employee's final working date where required by the employee's employment agreement or applicable policy.

Employees should discuss extended leave during the notice period with People & Culture before making arrangements.

5.22 Leave Without Approval

Employees must not assume that absence from work will be treated as approved leave.

Absence without required approval or communication may be treated as unauthorized absence.

Unauthorized absence may result in:

- Loss of pay
- Attendance records being adjusted
- Corrective action
- Disciplinary action in serious or repeated cases

5.23 Leave Records

Employees can view their leave balances and submitted requests through the designated HR system.

Employees are responsible for reviewing their leave records and reporting discrepancies to People & Culture.

If an employee believes their leave balance is incorrect, they should raise the issue with supporting information such as previous approvals or leave records.

5.24 Leave Encashment

Annual Leave may be eligible for encashment only where specifically permitted by company policy, employment terms, or applicable law.

Casual Leave and Sick Leave are not normally eligible for encashment.

Employees should contact People & Culture for the applicable rules regarding leave encashment at the time of separation or other eligible circumstances.

5.25 Leave Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for:

1. Planning leave in advance whenever possible.
2. Submitting leave requests through the designated HR system.
3. Obtaining approval before taking planned leave.
4. Informing their manager about unexpected absence.
5. Providing required documentation when requested.
6. Maintaining accurate leave records.
7. Ensuring appropriate work handover before extended planned leave.

Managers are responsible for reviewing leave requests fairly while considering business requirements, team availability, and applicable policies.

5.26 Leave Policy Questions

Questions regarding leave balances, eligibility, approval, carry-forward, documentation, or holidays should be directed to the People & Culture Department.

Where an employee's employment agreement or applicable law provides a different entitlement from the general policy described in this handbook, the applicable agreement or legal requirement will take precedence.

6. Remote and Hybrid Work Policy

6.1 Purpose

Nexora Technologies supports flexible working arrangements where they are compatible with business requirements, employee responsibilities, client commitments, and information security requirements.

Remote and hybrid work arrangements are intended to provide flexibility while maintaining productivity, collaboration, service quality, and accountability.

A remote or hybrid arrangement is a work arrangement approved by the company and is not an unconditional employee entitlement.

6.2 Types of Work Arrangements

Nexora generally supports the following work arrangements:

Office-Based

Employees work primarily from their designated Nexora office or another company-approved workplace.

Hybrid

Employees divide their working time between an approved Nexora office and an approved remote location.

Fully Remote

Employees perform their assigned responsibilities remotely on a full-time basis where the role and business requirements permit such an arrangement.

The applicable arrangement depends on the employee's role, department, project, client requirements, and manager approval.

6.3 Eligibility for Remote or Hybrid Work

Remote or hybrid work may be available to employees whose roles can be effectively performed outside the office.

Eligibility may depend on:

- Nature of the employee's role
- Business and operational requirements
- Client requirements
- Team collaboration requirements
- Employee performance
- Attendance and reliability
- Information security considerations
- Availability of suitable remote-working infrastructure

Not all roles are eligible for remote or hybrid work.

Roles requiring physical presence, specialized equipment, direct customer interaction, or secure facilities may require employees to work from an approved office or client location.

6.4 Standard Hybrid Arrangement

Where a team follows a hybrid arrangement, employees may generally be required to work from the office three days per week and may work remotely for the remaining two working days.

The exact schedule may vary between teams.

Managers may designate specific office days based on:

- Team meetings
- Client requirements
- Collaboration needs
- Training activities
- Business events

- Project requirements

Employees should follow the schedule communicated by their reporting manager.

6.5 Requesting a Remote Work Arrangement

Employees who wish to work remotely or change their existing hybrid schedule should submit a request through the designated company process.

The request should include:

- Proposed work arrangement
- Requested duration
- Proposed remote location
- Reason for the request, where required
- Any relevant supporting information

Approval must be obtained before the requested arrangement begins.

Submitting a request does not constitute approval.

6.6 Temporary Work From Home

Employees may request temporary Work From Home when circumstances make office attendance difficult.

Examples may include:

- Short-term personal emergencies
- Temporary transportation difficulties
- Minor illness where the employee is able to work
- Home-related emergencies
- Other circumstances approved by the reporting manager

Temporary Work From Home should generally be requested before the start of the working day.

The reporting manager may approve, modify, or decline the request based on business requirements.

6.7 Working Hours During Remote Work

Employees working remotely must follow their assigned working hours unless an alternative schedule has been approved.

For employees following the standard schedule, the expected working hours remain:

9:30 AM to 6:30 PM

Remote work does not change the employee's expected working hours.

Employees must remain available through approved communication and collaboration platforms during working hours.

6.8 Availability and Communication

Employees working remotely are expected to maintain effective communication with their teams.

Employees should:

- Remain reachable during scheduled working hours.
- Attend scheduled meetings.
- Respond to important work communications within a reasonable time.
- Keep their work status updated when required.
- Inform their manager when they will be temporarily unavailable.
- Use approved communication platforms for company business.

Repeated unavailability during working hours may result in the remote work arrangement being reviewed.

6.9 Remote Work Location

Employees must work from a remote location that has been approved or permitted under the applicable work arrangement.

Employees should maintain a work environment that allows them to perform their responsibilities effectively and securely.

Employees must not regularly work from public locations where confidential company or client information could be exposed.

Examples of unsuitable locations may include:

- Public cafes
- Unsecured shared workspaces
- Public transportation
- Other locations where unauthorized individuals may access company information

Exceptions may be permitted for short periods where appropriate security controls are available.

6.10 Working From Another City or Country

Employees must obtain prior approval before working remotely from a location different from their approved remote work location when the change is expected to be more than a short temporary arrangement.

Employees must not work from another country without prior written approval from the company.

Requests to work internationally may require additional review because of:

- Data protection requirements
- Tax implications
- Immigration requirements
- Employment regulations
- Client contractual obligations
- Information security requirements

Approval is not guaranteed.

6.11 Remote Work and Information Security

Employees working remotely must comply with all company information security policies.

Employees must:

1. Use company-approved devices where required.
2. Protect company credentials and authentication information.
3. Avoid accessing confidential information on unsecured devices.
4. Use approved networks and security tools.
5. Lock their devices when unattended.
6. Prevent unauthorized individuals from viewing company information.
7. Report suspected security incidents immediately.

Employees must not share company devices or credentials with family members, friends, or other unauthorized individuals.

6.12 Use of Company Equipment

Employees working remotely may be provided with company equipment required to perform their duties.

Company equipment may include:

- Laptops
- Monitors
- Headsets
- Mobile devices
- Security equipment
- Other approved accessories

Employees are responsible for taking reasonable care of company equipment.

Company equipment must be used primarily for authorized business purposes and in accordance with the company's acceptable-use and information-security policies.

6.13 Internet and Utilities

Employees working remotely are responsible for maintaining a reasonably reliable internet connection and suitable working environment unless the company has specifically agreed to provide or reimburse such expenses.

Where internet or utility reimbursement is available, employees must follow the applicable expense policy and reimbursement limits.

6.14 Remote Work During Meetings

Employees are expected to participate professionally in virtual meetings.

Employees should:

- Join meetings on time.
- Use an appropriate professional environment.
- Keep their camera on when required for business or team purposes, subject to reasonable circumstances.
- Use a headset when necessary to maintain confidentiality.
- Avoid participating from noisy or inappropriate locations.

Employees should notify the meeting organizer if technical difficulties prevent effective participation.

6.15 Remote Work During Illness

Employees who are unwell but capable of working may request temporary Work From Home where permitted by their role and manager.

Employees who are unable to work due to illness should use the applicable Sick Leave process rather than treating remote work as a substitute for leave.

Working remotely while sick does not remove the employee's right to use eligible Sick Leave.

6.16 Office Attendance Requirements

Employees with an approved hybrid arrangement may still be required to attend the office on specific days.

Employees may also be required to attend the office for:

- Important team meetings
- Client meetings
- Training programs

- Company events
- Performance discussions
- Business-critical activities

Employees should comply with reasonable office attendance requirements communicated by their manager.

6.17 Exceptions to Hybrid Requirements

Employees who are temporarily unable to meet their normal hybrid schedule may request an exception from their reporting manager.

The manager may consider:

- Reason for the request
- Duration
- Business impact
- Employee performance
- Team requirements
- Client requirements

Longer-term exceptions may require approval from People & Culture or another designated authority.

6.18 Performance Expectations

Employees working remotely or under a hybrid arrangement are subject to the same performance expectations as office-based employees.

Performance may be evaluated based on factors including:

- Quality of work
- Timeliness
- Achievement of objectives
- Collaboration
- Communication
- Customer or stakeholder outcomes
- Professional conduct

Physical presence in the office is not, by itself, a measure of performance.

6.19 Monitoring and Review of Remote Work

Nexora may periodically review remote and hybrid work arrangements to ensure that they continue to meet business and employee requirements.

An arrangement may be modified or withdrawn when:

- Business requirements change
- Client requirements change
- Performance concerns arise
- Security requirements are not being followed
- The employee repeatedly fails to meet availability requirements
- The role is no longer suitable for remote work

Employees will be informed of significant changes to their approved work arrangement.

6.20 Remote Work Expenses

Expenses associated with remote work are reimbursable only when specifically covered by the company's applicable expense policy.

Employees should obtain approval before incurring significant work-related expenses that they expect the company to reimburse.

Reimbursement requests must include required supporting documentation.

6.21 Remote Work During Travel

Employees should not combine personal travel with remote work without ensuring that the proposed location and arrangement are permitted.

Working remotely while travelling may require prior approval, particularly when:

- The employee is travelling outside their approved work location.
- The employee is travelling internationally.
- Confidential information will be accessed.
- Network security may be affected.
- Client requirements restrict access from certain locations.

Personal travel does not automatically create a right to work remotely from the travel destination.

6.22 Loss or Theft of Company Equipment

Employees must immediately report the loss or theft of company equipment to the IT or Information Security team.

The employee may also be required to:

- Change affected passwords.
- Disconnect or secure the device remotely where possible.
- Report the incident to local authorities when appropriate.

- Provide information required for the company's security investigation.

Employees should not attempt to conceal the loss or delay reporting it.

6.23 Ending a Remote Work Arrangement

A remote or hybrid arrangement may end when:

- The employee requests to return to office-based work.
- The employee changes roles.
- The employee moves to a role that requires office presence.
- Business requirements change.
- The approved arrangement expires.
- The company determines that the arrangement is no longer operationally suitable.

Employees will be informed of applicable changes and expected reporting arrangements.

6.24 Employee Responsibilities

Employees working remotely or under a hybrid arrangement are responsible for:

1. Following their approved work schedule.
2. Maintaining availability during working hours.
3. Attending required meetings.
4. Protecting company and client information.
5. Maintaining a suitable and secure work environment.
6. Taking reasonable care of company equipment.
7. Following attendance and leave procedures.
8. Obtaining approval before changing their approved work location.
9. Reporting security incidents promptly.
10. Meeting the same performance expectations applicable to their role.

6.25 Questions Regarding Remote and Hybrid Work

Employees with questions about eligibility, remote work locations, hybrid schedules, temporary Work From Home, international remote work, or exceptions should contact their reporting manager or the People & Culture Department.

The employee's approved work arrangement and any written instructions issued by the company should be treated as the authoritative source for their individual working arrangement.

7. Compensation and Payroll

7.1 Compensation Overview

Nexora Technologies provides compensation to employees based on their employment agreement, role, responsibilities, experience, qualifications, and applicable compensation structures.

An employee's compensation details are confidential and should be accessed only by the employee, authorized company personnel, or other individuals with a legitimate business need.

The compensation package may consist of:

- Base salary
- Allowances
- Variable or performance-based compensation
- Eligible benefits
- Other components specified in the employee's employment agreement

Not every employee will be eligible for every compensation component.

7.2 Salary Structure

An employee's salary structure is communicated in their employment agreement or compensation statement.

The structure may include components such as:

Component	Description
Basic Salary	Fixed component of an employee's compensation
House Rent Allowance	Allowance provided where applicable under the employee's compensation structure
Special Allowance	Fixed allowance determined by the employee's compensation structure
Variable Pay	Compensation linked to specified performance or business criteria
Other Allowances	Additional components applicable to specific roles or employees

The exact composition of an employee's salary may vary.

Employees should refer to their individual compensation statement for their specific salary components.

7.3 Payroll Cycle

Nexora operates a monthly payroll cycle.

Employees are generally paid once per month.

Salary for a particular month is normally processed so that employees receive payment by the last working day of that month, subject to banking operations, public holidays, payroll processing requirements, and other circumstances that may affect the payment date.

The company may communicate changes to the payroll schedule when necessary.

7.4 Salary Payment Method

Salary is paid directly into the bank account registered with Nexora.

Employees are responsible for providing accurate bank account information during onboarding and updating it when their banking details change.

The company is not responsible for delays caused by incorrect or outdated bank information provided by the employee.

Employees should report incorrect salary payments or banking issues to the People & Culture or Payroll team as soon as possible.

7.5 Payslips

Employees receive a monthly payslip through the designated employee or HR portal.

The payslip generally contains information such as:

- Employee identification details
- Pay period
- Earnings
- Allowances
- Deductions
- Net salary
- Applicable statutory contributions

Employees should review their payslips regularly and report discrepancies promptly.

7.6 Gross Salary and Net Salary

Gross salary refers to the employee's earnings before applicable deductions.

Net salary refers to the amount credited to the employee's bank account after applicable deductions.

Deductions may include legally required or authorized amounts such as:

- Income tax
- Employee provident fund contributions
- Other statutory contributions
- Approved employee deductions
- Recoveries authorized under applicable policies

The difference between gross and net salary may therefore vary between employees.

7.7 Statutory Deductions

Nexora makes deductions required under applicable laws and regulations.

Depending on the employee's circumstances and applicable law, deductions may include:

- Income tax
- Provident fund contributions
- Professional tax
- Other statutory deductions

Employees are responsible for providing accurate information required for payroll and tax processing.

The company will apply statutory deductions based on the information and declarations available through the applicable payroll process.

7.8 Tax Declarations

Employees may be required to submit tax-related declarations and supporting documents through the designated payroll or HR system.

Employees are responsible for submitting accurate information within the specified deadlines.

Failure to submit required information on time may affect the calculation of applicable tax deductions.

Employees should contact the Payroll or People & Culture team for questions regarding the company's payroll process.

7.9 Payroll Cut-Off Dates

Nexora may establish monthly payroll cut-off dates for processing changes affecting salary.

Examples of changes that may be subject to payroll cut-offs include:

- Bank account changes
- Tax declarations
- Approved allowances
- Reimbursements

- Salary adjustments
- Approved deductions

Changes submitted after the applicable cut-off may be reflected in the following payroll cycle.

Employees should follow the deadlines communicated by the Payroll team.

7.10 Salary Revision

Salary revisions may be considered periodically based on factors such as:

- Individual performance
- Role responsibilities
- Market conditions
- Business performance
- Internal compensation structures
- Promotion or role changes

A salary revision is not automatic solely because an employee has completed a particular period of service.

Where a revision is approved, the employee will receive formal communication regarding the applicable change.

7.11 Promotion and Compensation Changes

A promotion or change in job responsibilities may result in a compensation adjustment.

However, a promotion does not automatically guarantee a specific percentage increase.

Any compensation change associated with a promotion will be determined according to the company's compensation practices and communicated formally to the employee.

7.12 Variable Pay

Certain employees may be eligible for variable or performance-based compensation.

Eligibility and payment may depend on:

- Employee performance
- Achievement of individual objectives
- Team performance
- Company performance
- Applicable business results
- Employment status at the time of payment

- Terms specified in the employee's compensation plan

Variable pay is not guaranteed unless expressly stated as guaranteed in the applicable employment agreement.

7.13 Performance Bonuses

Where a performance bonus is offered, the applicable bonus plan will specify the relevant eligibility criteria and assessment period.

A bonus may be affected by:

- Performance rating
- Achievement of objectives
- Disciplinary status
- Business performance
- Duration of employment during the applicable period
- Other conditions stated in the bonus plan

Employees should refer to the applicable bonus communication for specific terms.

7.14 Salary During Probation

Employees on probation receive the compensation specified in their employment agreement.

Completion of probation does not automatically result in a salary increase unless such an increase is specifically stated in the employee's employment terms or communicated separately by the company.

Any change in compensation following confirmation will be communicated formally.

7.15 Salary During Leave

Salary treatment during leave depends on the type of leave and the employee's eligibility.

Approved paid leave will generally be treated as paid time in accordance with the applicable leave policy.

Unpaid Leave may result in a corresponding salary deduction based on the duration of unpaid absence and applicable payroll rules.

Employees should contact Payroll or People & Culture if they have questions about the salary impact of a particular type of leave.

7.16 Unpaid Leave Deduction

When an employee takes approved Unpaid Leave, the corresponding salary deduction will generally be calculated based on the employee's applicable payroll rules and the number of unpaid days.

The deduction may appear in the payslip for the month in which the unpaid absence is processed.

Where payroll processing prevents the deduction from being applied in the same month, the adjustment may appear in a subsequent payroll cycle.

7.17 Overtime and Additional Work

Overtime compensation, where applicable, depends on the employee's employment category, role, applicable company policy, and applicable law.

Employees should obtain the required approval before performing planned overtime.

Additional hours worked without the required approval do not automatically create an entitlement to additional compensation.

7.18 Expense Reimbursements

Approved business expenses may be reimbursed separately from the employee's salary.

Examples include eligible:

- Business travel expenses
- Client-related expenses
- Approved accommodation expenses
- Local transportation
- Other expenses covered by the company's Travel and Expense Policy

Employees must submit reimbursement claims through the designated expense system within the applicable deadline.

Expense reimbursements are subject to the company's approval requirements and reimbursement limits.

7.19 Payroll Errors

Employees who identify a potential payroll error should contact the Payroll or People & Culture team as soon as possible.

Examples of potential payroll issues include:

- Incorrect salary amount
- Missing allowance
- Incorrect deduction
- Missing reimbursement
- Incorrect bank account credit

The Payroll team will review the issue and make corrections where an error is confirmed.

Employees should not assume that an incorrect payment represents a permanent entitlement.

7.20 Overpayment of Salary

If an employee receives an amount greater than the amount they were entitled to receive, the employee must inform the Payroll or People & Culture team.

The company may recover an overpayment in accordance with applicable law and company procedures.

Recovery may be made through:

- Adjustment in a subsequent payroll cycle
- Direct repayment
- Another mutually agreed method permitted by applicable law

Employees should not intentionally retain or spend funds they know or reasonably believe were paid to them incorrectly.

7.21 Underpayment of Salary

If an employee believes that their salary has been underpaid, they should first verify the payslip and then contact the Payroll team.

The employee should provide relevant information such as:

- Pay period
- Payslip
- Expected amount
- Actual amount received
- Relevant approval or compensation communication

Confirmed underpayments will be corrected through the appropriate payroll process.

7.22 Salary Confidentiality

Employees are expected to handle their own compensation information responsibly.

Employees must not access, disclose, copy, or distribute another employee's confidential compensation information without authorization.

Authorized managers and company personnel may access compensation information when required for legitimate business purposes.

7.23 Final Salary

When an employee leaves Nexora, the company will process the employee's final salary and other applicable dues through the separation and payroll process.

The final settlement may include applicable:

- Salary up to the final working date

- Approved reimbursements
- Eligible leave encashment
- Variable compensation where applicable
- Statutory payments
- Recoveries or deductions permitted under applicable law and employment terms

The timing of final settlement may depend on completion of the exit process and applicable legal or company requirements.

7.24 Salary Advance

Employees may request a salary advance only where the company has an applicable salary advance program.

Approval is subject to the eligibility requirements and terms of that program.

A salary advance is not an automatic employee entitlement.

Where approved, the repayment schedule and applicable conditions will be communicated to the employee.

7.25 Payroll Support

Employees should use the designated Payroll or People & Culture support channel for payroll-related questions.

Common payroll queries include:

- Salary credit issues
- Payslip discrepancies
- Tax deductions
- Bank account changes
- Salary revisions
- Variable pay
- Reimbursements
- Final settlement

Employees should provide sufficient information when raising a payroll query to allow the issue to be investigated efficiently.

7.26 Employee Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for:

1. Providing accurate payroll and banking information.

2. Reviewing monthly payslips.
3. Submitting required tax declarations on time.
4. Meeting payroll cut-off deadlines.
5. Reporting payroll discrepancies promptly.
6. Submitting eligible reimbursement claims within the required period.
7. Informing Payroll of suspected overpayments.
8. Maintaining the confidentiality of compensation information belonging to other employees.

The Payroll and People & Culture teams are responsible for processing compensation in accordance with applicable company policies, employee agreements, and legal requirements.

8. Employee Benefits

8.1 Overview

Nexora Technologies provides a range of benefits to support employees' financial security, well-being, professional development, and work-life balance.

Benefits may vary based on:

- Employment category
- Length of service
- Work location
- Applicable law
- Eligibility requirements of the specific benefit
- Terms of the employee's employment agreement

Employees should review the applicable benefit information provided by People & Culture and the benefits portal.

8.2 Benefits Eligibility

Unless a benefit specifically states otherwise, regular full-time employees are eligible for the standard employee benefits package.

Eligibility for certain benefits may begin:

- From the date of joining
- After completion of probation
- After a specified period of service
- Upon meeting a specific eligibility condition

Interns, trainees, contract employees, and fixed-term employees may have different benefit eligibility depending on their employment terms.

Employees should not assume that eligibility for one benefit automatically means eligibility for all benefits.

8.3 Health Insurance

Eligible employees are covered under the company's group health insurance program.

The health insurance plan may cover eligible medical expenses subject to:

- Policy terms
- Coverage limits
- Waiting periods
- Exclusions
- Deductibles or co-payments
- Network provider requirements

The exact coverage available to an employee is determined by the active insurance plan for the applicable policy year.

Employees should refer to the insurance portal or policy document for detailed coverage information.

8.4 Dependent Health Coverage

Eligible employees may be permitted to include approved dependents under the company health insurance program.

Eligible dependents may include:

- Spouse
- Children
- Parents

Dependent eligibility and coverage limits are determined by the applicable insurance plan.

Employees may be required to submit supporting documentation when adding dependents.

Adding a dependent does not guarantee coverage if the dependent does not meet the insurance provider's eligibility requirements.

8.5 Adding or Removing Dependents

Employees may add or remove eligible dependents during:

- The designated annual benefits enrollment period
- A permitted life-event enrollment window
- Another period specifically authorized by the insurance provider

Examples of qualifying life events may include:

- Marriage

- Birth or adoption of a child
- Death of a covered dependent
- Other events recognized under the applicable insurance plan

Employees should submit changes within the applicable enrollment deadline.

Late requests may not be accepted unless permitted by the insurance provider.

8.6 Health Insurance Claims

Employees may submit eligible medical claims through the insurance provider's designated process.

Depending on the plan, claims may be processed through:

- Cashless treatment at network hospitals
- Reimbursement of eligible expenses
- Another process specified by the insurance provider

Employees are responsible for providing the required documents and following the insurer's claim procedures.

Nexora does not determine whether a specific medical expense is covered. Coverage decisions are made according to the applicable insurance policy.

8.7 Preventive Health Programs

Nexora may provide preventive health and wellness programs for eligible employees.

Programs may include:

- Annual health check-ups
- Health awareness sessions
- Wellness workshops
- Fitness initiatives
- Mental well-being resources
- Ergonomic assessments

Availability may vary by location and business requirements.

Participation in wellness programs does not replace professional medical advice or treatment.

8.8 Employee Assistance Program

Eligible employees may have access to an Employee Assistance Program (EAP) offering confidential support for personal and workplace-related concerns.

Depending on the applicable program, services may include:

- Counselling support
- Stress-management resources
- Financial guidance
- Family support resources
- Work-life assistance

The specific services available are determined by the company's EAP provider.

Employees may access the program through the contact information provided by People & Culture.

8.9 Provident Fund and Statutory Benefits

Nexora provides statutory benefits and contributions required under applicable law.

Depending on eligibility and applicable legislation, these may include:

- Provident Fund contributions
- Professional tax
- Statutory insurance or social security contributions
- Other legally required benefits

The amount and treatment of statutory contributions may vary depending on an employee's circumstances and applicable regulations.

Employees should contact Payroll or People & Culture for questions regarding statutory deductions or contributions.

8.10 Gratuity

Eligible employees may receive gratuity or other statutory separation benefits in accordance with applicable law.

Eligibility, calculation, and payment requirements are governed by the applicable legislation and the employee's circumstances.

Employees should contact People & Culture for information regarding their individual eligibility.

8.11 Life and Accident Insurance

Nexora may provide eligible employees with group life insurance and personal accident coverage.

Coverage may depend on:

- Employee eligibility
- The active insurance policy
- Coverage limits
- Policy exclusions

- Employment status

Employees should review the current insurance policy or benefits portal for specific coverage details.

8.12 Insurance Beneficiaries

Where an insurance plan permits employees to nominate beneficiaries, employees should ensure that their beneficiary information is accurate and up to date.

Employees should review beneficiary information after major personal changes and update it through the designated benefits system where permitted.

The insurance provider's policy terms will determine how beneficiary claims are handled.

8.13 Meal and Transportation Benefits

Nexora may provide meal, transportation, or other workplace allowances to employees based on their role, location, work schedule, or applicable company programs.

These benefits are subject to the limits and eligibility conditions communicated by the company.

Not all employees are eligible for the same allowances.

8.14 Transportation Support for Late Shifts

Employees working approved late-night or overnight shifts may be eligible for company-arranged transportation subject to applicable safety and transportation policies.

Eligibility may depend on:

- Shift timing
- Work location
- Employee location
- Availability of transportation services
- Applicable safety requirements

Employees should follow the transportation booking and cancellation procedures communicated by the company.

8.15 Internet and Remote Work Support

Employees who are formally approved for remote or hybrid work may be eligible for limited reimbursement or support for work-related internet expenses where such a benefit is included in the company's applicable program.

Eligibility, reimbursement limits, and documentation requirements will be communicated separately.

Employees should not assume that all home internet or utility expenses are reimbursable.

8.16 Professional Development Benefits

Nexora encourages employees to develop their technical and professional skills.

Eligible employees may receive support for approved learning activities such as:

- Professional certifications
- Technical courses
- Workshops
- Conferences
- Training programs
- Industry events

Employees must obtain the required approval before incurring expenses that they expect the company to reimburse.

8.17 Certification Reimbursement

Employees may request reimbursement for approved professional certifications where the certification is relevant to their role or career development.

The certification must normally be approved before the employee registers or pays the certification fee.

Reimbursement may be subject to:

- Annual limits
- Business relevance
- Successful completion requirements
- Submission of receipts
- Manager approval
- People & Culture or Learning & Development approval

Certification reimbursement is not guaranteed solely because an employee completed a certification.

8.18 Employee Recognition Programs

Nexora may operate employee recognition programs to recognize outstanding contributions.

Recognition may include:

- Spot awards
- Team awards
- Performance recognition
- Service awards

- Peer recognition

Recognition awards are subject to the rules of the applicable program.

Receiving recognition does not automatically create an entitlement to a salary increase or promotion.

8.19 Employee Discounts

Nexora may negotiate employee discounts or special offers with selected external service providers.

Such offers may include discounts on:

- Learning platforms
- Fitness services
- Travel
- Retail products
- Technology services

Offers are subject to availability and may change or expire without becoming a permanent employee benefit.

Employees should refer to the benefits portal for currently available offers.

8.20 Paid Volunteer Time

Eligible regular employees may receive up to 2 paid working days per calendar year to participate in approved community service or volunteering activities.

Volunteer time must:

- Be requested in advance.
- Be approved by the reporting manager.
- Involve an eligible volunteering activity.
- Be recorded through the designated HR process.

Unused volunteer days cannot normally be carried forward or converted into cash.

8.21 Employee Referral Program

Nexora may operate an employee referral program through which employees can recommend candidates for open positions.

Employees may be eligible for a referral bonus when:

1. The referred candidate applies through the designated referral process.
2. The candidate is successfully hired.
3. The candidate completes the minimum service period specified in the referral program.
4. All other program conditions are satisfied.

Employees involved in the hiring decision for a referred candidate may be subject to additional restrictions.

The referral bonus amount and eligibility requirements may change based on the active referral program.

8.22 Benefits During Leave

Benefits generally continue during approved paid leave in accordance with the applicable benefit plan.

Benefits during unpaid leave may be affected depending on:

- Duration of the unpaid leave
- Type of benefit
- Insurance provider requirements
- Applicable law
- Company policy

Employees planning extended unpaid leave should contact People & Culture before the leave begins to understand any impact on their benefits.

8.23 Benefits During Probation

Employees on probation may be eligible for benefits from the date of joining or after completion of a specified eligibility period, depending on the particular benefit.

Probation does not automatically exclude an employee from all benefits.

Employees should refer to the eligibility requirements of each individual benefit.

8.24 Benefits After Resignation

Certain employee benefits may continue until the employee's final working date, while other benefits may end earlier depending on their terms.

Health insurance and other benefits may be subject to the rules of the applicable provider.

Employees should contact People & Culture during the exit process to understand:

- Coverage end date
- Pending claims
- Dependent coverage
- Conversion or continuation options, where available
- Required documentation

8.25 Benefits After Termination

Benefits following termination of employment will be handled in accordance with applicable company policy, employment terms, insurance agreements, and applicable law.

Employees whose employment has ended should contact People & Culture for information regarding benefit closure and any applicable continuation options.

8.26 Changes to Benefits

Nexora may review and modify employee benefit programs based on:

- Business requirements
- Cost considerations
- Market practices
- Insurance provider terms
- Changes in applicable law

Employees will be informed of material changes to their benefits through official company communication channels.

A benefit described in a previous year's handbook may not necessarily be available under the current benefits program.

8.27 Benefit Enrollment

Employees must complete required benefit enrollment within the timelines communicated by People & Culture.

Failure to complete enrollment within the required period may result in:

- Delayed activation
- Loss of an enrollment opportunity
- Inability to add dependents until the next permitted enrollment period
- Other consequences specified by the applicable benefit provider

Employees are responsible for reviewing their enrollment information for accuracy.

8.28 Benefits Support

Employees with questions regarding benefits should contact People & Culture or use the designated benefits support channel.

For insurance-specific questions, employees may also be directed to the insurance provider or third-party benefits administrator.

Questions may include:

- Benefit eligibility
- Insurance coverage

- Dependent enrollment
- Claims
- Beneficiary information
- Professional development reimbursement
- Employee assistance programs
- Benefit changes

8.29 Employee Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for:

1. Reviewing their benefit eligibility.
2. Completing required enrollment within applicable deadlines.
3. Providing accurate dependent and beneficiary information.
4. Keeping benefit information up to date.
5. Following claim and reimbursement procedures.
6. Obtaining required approvals before incurring reimbursable expenses.
7. Reviewing benefit communications issued by People & Culture.
8. Reporting benefit-related discrepancies promptly.

Employees should refer to the current benefit plan documents for detailed terms, exclusions, limits, and eligibility conditions.

9. Code of Conduct and Workplace Behaviour

9.1 Purpose

Nexora Technologies expects all employees to conduct themselves with professionalism, integrity, respect, and accountability.

The Code of Conduct establishes the standards of behaviour expected from employees while performing work-related activities or representing Nexora.

Employees are expected to comply with this policy regardless of whether they are working:

- From a Nexora office
- Remotely
- At a client location
- While travelling for business
- At a company event
- At another location while performing company-related work

9.2 Professional Conduct

Employees must perform their responsibilities honestly, professionally, and responsibly.

Employees are expected to:

1. Treat colleagues, clients, vendors, and visitors with respect.
2. Communicate professionally.
3. Perform assigned responsibilities diligently.
4. Follow applicable company policies.
5. Protect company and client interests.
6. Use company resources responsibly.
7. Raise concerns through appropriate channels.
8. Cooperate with legitimate workplace investigations.

Unprofessional or inappropriate conduct may result in corrective or disciplinary action.

9.3 Respectful Workplace

Nexora is committed to maintaining a workplace where employees are treated with dignity and respect.

Employees must not engage in behaviour that is intimidating, threatening, humiliating, abusive, or deliberately disruptive.

Respectful behaviour applies to:

- Verbal communication
- Written communication
- Email
- Messaging platforms
- Video meetings
- Social interactions at work
- Company events
- Client interactions

Employees are expected to consider the impact of their behaviour on others.

9.4 Discrimination

Nexora does not tolerate unlawful discrimination in the workplace.

Employment-related decisions should be based on legitimate factors such as:

- Qualifications

- Skills
- Experience
- Performance
- Business requirements
- Role suitability

Employees must not discriminate against another person in connection with employment or workplace activities on grounds protected by applicable law.

Concerns regarding discrimination should be reported through the appropriate grievance or reporting channel.

9.5 Harassment

Nexora prohibits harassment and other inappropriate conduct in the workplace.

Harassment may include unwelcome conduct that creates an intimidating, hostile, humiliating, or offensive work environment.

Examples may include:

- Repeated insulting comments
- Threatening behaviour
- Offensive jokes or remarks
- Unwelcome personal comments
- Deliberate humiliation
- Repeated unwanted communication
- Other conduct prohibited by applicable law

Employees should report suspected harassment through the appropriate reporting channel.

9.6 Workplace Violence and Threats

Nexora does not tolerate violence, threats of violence, or behaviour that creates a serious safety risk.

Employees must not:

- Threaten another employee or third party.
- Engage in physical violence.
- Intentionally damage property.
- Bring prohibited dangerous items into company premises.
- Use intimidation to influence workplace decisions.

Any immediate threat to personal safety should be reported to appropriate emergency or security personnel first.

Workplace concerns should also be reported to People & Culture or the designated security contact.

9.7 Bullying

Bullying is not acceptable at Nexora.

Bullying may involve repeated unreasonable behaviour intended to intimidate, isolate, humiliate, or undermine another person.

Examples may include:

- Repeated personal insults
- Deliberate exclusion from necessary workplace communication
- Persistent humiliation
- Threatening or intimidating communication
- Repeated unreasonable behaviour intended to undermine an employee

Reasonable performance feedback, legitimate management decisions, and constructive criticism do not automatically constitute bullying.

9.8 Conflicts of Interest

Employees must avoid situations where their personal interests conflict, or appear to conflict, with Nexora's business interests.

Potential conflicts may include:

- Financial interests in a company that does business with Nexora
- Personal relationships that influence business decisions
- Outside employment that conflicts with Nexora responsibilities
- Participating in hiring decisions involving a close relative
- Using company information for personal benefit

Employees must disclose actual or potential conflicts to their reporting manager or People & Culture.

The company will assess the situation and determine appropriate measures.

9.9 Outside Employment

Employees must not undertake outside employment, consulting, freelancing, or business activities that:

- Conflict with their responsibilities at Nexora.
- Interfere with their working hours.
- Use Nexora resources or confidential information.
- Create a conflict of interest.

- Compete with Nexora's business.

Employees should disclose proposed outside professional activities when required by company policy.

Prior approval may be required before undertaking certain outside activities.

9.10 Gifts and Hospitality

Employees must exercise caution when accepting or offering gifts, meals, entertainment, or other benefits from clients, vendors, suppliers, or business partners.

Employees must not accept or offer anything that could improperly influence a business decision.

Employees may accept modest and customary business gifts where:

- The gift is not cash or a cash equivalent.
- It is not intended to influence a business decision.
- It does not create an actual or perceived obligation.
- Acceptance is consistent with applicable company policy.

Cash gifts, gift cards, or other cash-equivalent benefits must not be accepted from vendors or business partners.

Employees should disclose questionable gifts to their manager or People & Culture.

9.11 Anti-Bribery

Nexora prohibits bribery and improper payments.

Employees must not directly or indirectly offer, promise, authorize, request, or accept anything of value for the purpose of improperly influencing a business decision.

This prohibition applies when dealing with:

- Customers
- Vendors
- Suppliers
- Business partners
- Government officials
- Other third parties

Employees must report suspected bribery or improper payment requests through the appropriate reporting channel.

9.12 Company Property

Company property must be used responsibly and primarily for authorized business purposes.

Company property may include:

- Laptops
- Mobile devices
- Office equipment
- Software
- Access cards
- Documents
- Data
- Intellectual property
- Other company-owned resources

Employees must take reasonable care of company property and report loss, damage, or unauthorized use.

9.13 Acceptable Use of Company Resources

Employees may use company systems for limited personal activities when such use:

- Does not interfere with work.
- Does not create a security risk.
- Does not violate company policies.
- Does not involve unlawful activity.
- Does not create unreasonable costs for the company.

Company resources must not be used for activities that could damage Nexora's reputation or compromise company systems.

9.14 Prohibited Use of Company Systems

Employees must not use company systems to:

- Access unlawful content.
- Distribute malicious software.
- Attempt unauthorized access to systems.
- Harass or threaten another person.
- Conduct fraudulent activities.
- Distribute confidential information without authorization.
- Engage in activities that violate applicable law or company policy.

Information Security policies may impose additional restrictions.

9.15 Personal Relationships at Work

Employees may have personal relationships with colleagues provided that the relationship does not interfere with professional responsibilities or create a conflict of interest.

Employees in a direct or indirect supervisory relationship may be required to disclose the relationship to People & Culture.

Managers must not use their position to provide preferential treatment to a person with whom they have a personal relationship.

9.16 Nepotism and Hiring Relatives

Employees may recommend qualified relatives for employment opportunities.

However, employees must disclose the relationship when participating in recruitment or employment decisions involving that person.

An employee must not be directly responsible for hiring, evaluating, promoting, or determining compensation for a close relative without appropriate safeguards.

People & Culture may determine an alternative reporting or decision-making arrangement.

9.17 Political and Personal Activities

Employees are free to participate in lawful personal activities outside work.

However, employees must not:

- Represent personal political views as those of Nexora.
- Use company resources for personal political campaigning.
- Use company premises for unauthorized political activities.
- Pressure colleagues to participate in personal political activities.

Employees should make clear when expressing personal opinions that they are speaking in their individual capacity.

9.18 Social Media

Employees may use social media for personal purposes provided that their activities comply with applicable laws and company policies.

Employees must not:

- Disclose confidential company or client information.
- Share restricted internal documents.
- Impersonate Nexora or falsely represent themselves as an authorized company spokesperson.
- Make unauthorized statements on behalf of the company.

- Use social media to harass or threaten colleagues.
- Publish information that violates applicable confidentiality obligations.

Only authorized employees may make official statements on behalf of Nexora.

9.19 Personal Opinions and Company Representation

Employees are entitled to express personal opinions in their individual capacity.

When communicating publicly, employees should avoid creating the impression that they are speaking on behalf of Nexora unless they have been authorized to do so.

Employees representing Nexora publicly must follow applicable communication and media guidelines.

9.20 Alcohol and Substance Use

Employees must not report to work impaired by alcohol or illegal substances.

The possession, use, distribution, or sale of illegal substances on company premises or while performing company-related duties is prohibited.

Employees must also comply with applicable laws and client-site requirements.

Alcohol may be consumed at company-sponsored events only where specifically permitted and where employees behave responsibly and comply with applicable law and event guidelines.

9.21 Smoking and Tobacco

Smoking and use of tobacco products are permitted only in locations where they are legally and specifically allowed.

Employees must follow smoking restrictions applicable to Nexora offices, client locations, and other workplaces.

Smoking or tobacco use must not create a health, safety, or disturbance issue for others.

9.22 Dress and Personal Presentation

Employees are expected to maintain a professional appearance appropriate to their role and work environment.

Dress requirements may vary depending on:

- Client requirements
- Safety requirements
- Nature of the work
- Company events
- Office location

Employees working at client sites must comply with applicable client dress and workplace requirements.

9.23 Workplace Communication

Employees should communicate professionally through company communication channels.

Employees must not use workplace communication systems to:

- Send threatening messages
- Harass another person
- Distribute offensive content
- Deliberately spread false information
- Share confidential information without authorization

Employees should use professional language and appropriate communication channels when discussing workplace matters.

9.24 Confidentiality

Employees may have access to confidential information belonging to Nexora, its employees, clients, vendors, or business partners.

Employees must:

- Access information only when authorized.
- Use confidential information only for legitimate business purposes.
- Avoid sharing confidential information with unauthorized individuals.
- Protect physical and electronic records.
- Follow information security procedures.

Confidentiality obligations may continue after employment ends.

9.25 Intellectual Property

Work products created by employees as part of their employment may constitute company intellectual property, subject to applicable law and the employee's employment agreement.

Employees must not:

- Copy company intellectual property for unauthorized personal use.
- Distribute proprietary software or materials without authorization.
- Use third-party intellectual property without appropriate permission.
- Claim company-owned work as personal work without authorization.

Employees should refer to their employment agreement and applicable intellectual property policy for detailed requirements.

9.26 Accurate Records

Employees must ensure that information they submit to Nexora is accurate and complete.

This includes information related to:

- Attendance
- Expenses
- Leave
- Timesheets
- Project records
- Customer information
- Employment documentation

Employees must not intentionally falsify, alter, or manipulate company records.

9.27 Cooperation With Investigations

Employees are expected to cooperate honestly with authorized company investigations.

Employees may be asked to:

- Provide relevant information
- Participate in interviews
- Preserve relevant records
- Provide access to company information where authorized

Employees must not intentionally destroy, alter, conceal, or falsify information relevant to an authorized investigation.

9.28 Retaliation

Nexora prohibits retaliation against employees who raise concerns in good faith or participate in an authorized investigation.

Retaliation may include:

- Threats
- Intimidation
- Unjustified adverse treatment
- Deliberate exclusion

- Punishment for reporting a concern in good faith

Employees who believe they have experienced retaliation should report the concern through the appropriate reporting channel.

9.29 Reporting a Code of Conduct Concern

Employees who observe or experience potential violations of the Code of Conduct should report the concern through one of the following channels:

1. Reporting Manager
2. People & Culture Department
3. Designated Ethics or Compliance contact
4. Confidential reporting channel, where available

Employees should provide factual information and relevant evidence where available.

Employees are not expected to investigate suspected violations themselves.

9.30 Good-Faith Reporting

Employees should report concerns honestly and in good faith.

A report does not need to be proven before it is submitted.

However, knowingly making false accusations, deliberately providing misleading information, or misusing reporting channels may itself result in disciplinary action.

9.31 Disciplinary Consequences

Violations of the Code of Conduct may result in corrective or disciplinary action depending on:

- Nature of the violation
- Severity
- Impact on employees or the company
- Previous conduct
- Intent
- Applicable law
- Other relevant circumstances

Possible actions may include:

- Verbal counselling
- Written warning
- Formal performance or conduct improvement measures

- Suspension where permitted
- Termination of employment
- Other action permitted by company policy and applicable law

Serious violations may result in immediate escalation.

9.32 Employee Responsibilities

Every employee is responsible for:

1. Reading and understanding the Code of Conduct.
2. Acting honestly and professionally.
3. Treating others with dignity and respect.
4. Avoiding conflicts of interest.
5. Protecting confidential information.
6. Using company resources responsibly.
7. Following applicable laws and company policies.
8. Reporting suspected misconduct in good faith.
9. Cooperating with authorized investigations.
10. Avoiding retaliation against individuals who raise concerns.

Managers have an additional responsibility to model appropriate behaviour and respond appropriately when concerns are raised.

9.33 Questions Regarding Workplace Conduct

Employees who are uncertain whether a particular action or situation violates the Code of Conduct should seek guidance from their reporting manager, People & Culture, or the designated Ethics or Compliance contact before taking action where reasonably possible.

Employees are encouraged to raise concerns early rather than allowing potential issues to escalate.

10. Workplace Harassment and Anti-Harassment Policy

10.1 Purpose

Nexora Technologies is committed to providing a workplace where employees are treated with dignity and respect.

The company does not tolerate harassment, sexual harassment, discrimination, bullying, intimidation, or retaliation.

This policy applies to employees, interns, trainees, contractors, clients, vendors, and other individuals interacting with Nexora employees in a work-related context.

10.2 Prohibited Harassment

Harassment includes unwelcome behaviour that may reasonably create an intimidating, hostile, humiliating, or offensive work environment.

Examples may include:

- Offensive comments or jokes
- Repeated unwanted personal remarks
- Threatening or intimidating behaviour
- Unwelcome physical contact
- Offensive messages, images, or communications
- Deliberate humiliation or exclusion
- Repeated conduct intended to undermine another person

A single serious incident may also constitute harassment depending on the circumstances.

10.3 Sexual Harassment

Sexual harassment includes unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature, whether verbal, non-verbal, written, visual, or physical.

Examples may include:

- Unwelcome sexual comments
- Sexual jokes or messages
- Unwanted physical contact
- Requests for sexual favours
- Sharing sexually explicit material
- Unwelcome comments about a person's appearance
- Behaviour that creates a sexually hostile work environment

Employees should report concerns even if they are uncertain whether the conduct formally meets the definition of sexual harassment.

10.4 Harassment Through Digital Platforms

The anti-harassment policy applies to workplace-related digital communication, including:

- Email
- Company messaging platforms
- Video meetings
- Collaboration tools

- Work-related social media groups

Harassment does not become acceptable simply because it occurs online or outside the physical workplace.

10.5 Reporting a Concern

Employees who experience or witness harassment may report the concern through:

1. People & Culture
2. Their reporting manager
3. The designated Ethics or Compliance contact
4. The designated complaints committee or confidential reporting channel, where applicable

Employees may report a concern even if they do not have complete evidence.

10.6 Investigation

Nexora will review reported concerns through an appropriate investigation process.

Depending on the circumstances, an investigation may involve:

- Interviews with relevant individuals
- Review of documents or communications
- Examination of other relevant evidence
- Consultation with appropriate internal or external specialists

Employees involved in an investigation are expected to cooperate honestly.

Information will be handled as confidentially as reasonably possible, subject to the requirements of the investigation and applicable law.

10.7 Protection Against Retaliation

Retaliation against an employee who raises a concern in good faith or participates in an investigation is prohibited.

Employees should report suspected retaliation through the same reporting channels available for harassment concerns.

10.8 False or Malicious Complaints

Employees are encouraged to report concerns in good faith.

A complaint will not be considered malicious merely because the allegation cannot be substantiated.

However, knowingly making a false complaint or deliberately providing false information during an investigation may result in disciplinary action.

10.9 Support for Employees

Employees who report or experience harassment may request information about available support resources through People & Culture.

Depending on the circumstances, support may include:

- Employee Assistance Program resources
- Workplace accommodations
- Information about the complaints process
- Other appropriate support

10.10 Policy Responsibilities

Employees are expected to maintain respectful workplace behaviour and report serious concerns through appropriate channels.

Managers who become aware of a potential harassment concern must respond appropriately and escalate the matter according to company procedures.

Employees should not attempt to conduct their own investigation or confront an alleged offender where doing so could create additional risk.

11. Information Security and Data Privacy

11.1 Purpose

Nexora protects company, employee, customer, and client information from unauthorized access, disclosure, modification, loss, or destruction.

Employees are responsible for following information security and data protection requirements whenever they access company information or systems.

11.2 Confidential Information

Confidential information may include:

- Customer and client information
- Employee records
- Financial information
- Business strategies
- Source code
- Credentials
- Internal documents
- Product information

- Contracts
- Proprietary data

Employees must access confidential information only when authorized and required for their work.

11.3 Passwords and Authentication

Employees must:

- Use strong passwords where required.
- Keep passwords confidential.
- Never share authentication credentials.
- Use multi-factor authentication when required.
- Report suspected credential compromise immediately.

Employees must not write passwords in publicly accessible locations or use another employee's account.

11.4 Company Devices

Company devices must be protected against unauthorized access.

Employees must:

- Lock devices when unattended.
- Install security updates when required.
- Use approved security software.
- Report lost or stolen devices immediately.
- Avoid installing unauthorized software.

Employees must not disable security controls without authorization.

11.5 Data Sharing

Employees must share company or client information only with authorized recipients.

Confidential information must not be sent through personal email accounts, unauthorized cloud storage, or unapproved messaging applications.

Employees should verify recipients before sending sensitive information.

11.6 Personal Data

Personal data must be collected, accessed, stored, and processed only for legitimate business purposes and in accordance with applicable privacy requirements.

Employees should access personal information only when their role requires it.

Unnecessary copying or storage of personal data is prohibited.

11.7 Phishing and Suspicious Messages

Employees should be cautious of unexpected emails, messages, links, attachments, or requests for credentials or financial information.

Potential phishing attempts should be reported to the IT or Information Security team.

Employees should not knowingly forward suspicious messages to other employees without following the company's security reporting process.

11.8 Security Incidents

Employees must report suspected security incidents immediately.

Examples include:

- Lost company devices
- Accidental disclosure of confidential information
- Suspected malware
- Compromised credentials
- Unauthorized system access
- Phishing attacks
- Sending sensitive information to the wrong recipient

Employees should not attempt to conceal or independently investigate a suspected security incident.

11.9 Remote Access

Employees accessing company systems remotely must use approved devices, networks, authentication methods, and security tools.

Public or unsecured networks should not be used to access highly sensitive company information unless approved security controls are in place.

11.10 Data Retention and Disposal

Employees must retain company information only for the period required by business, legal, or policy requirements.

Confidential documents must be disposed of using approved secure disposal methods.

Employees must not permanently delete or destroy records that are subject to a legal, regulatory, or company retention requirement.

11.11 Employee Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for protecting company information and reporting suspected security incidents promptly.

Failure to follow information security requirements may result in corrective or disciplinary action.

12. IT Equipment and Acceptable Use

12.1 Company Equipment

Nexora may provide employees with equipment required to perform their responsibilities, including:

- Laptops
- Monitors
- Mobile devices
- Headsets
- Access cards
- Other approved equipment

Equipment remains company property unless ownership is formally transferred.

12.2 Appropriate Use

Company equipment and systems must primarily be used for legitimate business purposes.

Limited personal use may be permitted when it:

- Does not interfere with work.
- Does not create security risks.
- Does not violate company policies.
- Does not result in unreasonable costs.

12.3 Prohibited Activities

Employees must not use company systems to:

- Access unlawful content
- Install malicious software
- Attempt unauthorized system access
- Circumvent security controls
- Conduct fraudulent activities
- Store or distribute unauthorized confidential information
- Harass or threaten others

12.4 Software Installation

Employees must install software only when it is authorized by Nexora.

Employees should use the company's approved software catalogue or IT support process when requesting new software.

Unauthorized software may create security, licensing, or compatibility risks.

12.5 Equipment Damage or Loss

Employees must report lost, stolen, or damaged company equipment to IT as soon as possible.

Where appropriate, IT may remotely disable or secure a device.

Employees may be required to provide information needed to investigate the incident.

12.6 Returning Equipment

Employees must return company equipment when:

- Employment ends
- Equipment is replaced
- The employee changes roles and the equipment is no longer required
- The company requests its return

Employees must not retain company equipment after the required return date without authorization.

12.7 IT Support

Technical issues should be reported through the designated IT support channel.

Employees should provide sufficient information about the problem to allow IT to diagnose and resolve the issue efficiently.

13. Travel and Expense Policy

13.1 Purpose

Nexora Technologies reimburses employees for reasonable and necessary expenses incurred while performing authorized business activities.

Employees must obtain required approvals before making significant business-related expenses.

13.2 Business Travel

Business travel may be required for:

- Client meetings

- Conferences and industry events
- Training programs
- Project assignments
- Business meetings at another company location

Travel should be planned in advance whenever reasonably possible.

13.3 Travel Approval

Employees must obtain approval from their reporting manager before booking business travel.

International travel may require additional approval from the relevant department or management.

Employees should not assume that expenses incurred without the required approval will be reimbursed.

13.4 Transportation

Reasonable transportation expenses incurred for approved business travel may be reimbursed.

Employees should use cost-effective transportation options appropriate to the business requirement.

Examples include:

- Economy-class air travel
- Rail travel
- Public transportation
- Approved taxis or ride-hailing services

Premium transportation generally requires specific prior approval.

13.5 Accommodation

Employees travelling for business may claim reimbursement for reasonable accommodation expenses within the limits established by the company.

Employees should use company-preferred hotels or approved booking channels where available.

Personal upgrades or additional charges are normally not reimbursable.

13.6 Meals

Employees may claim reasonable meal expenses incurred during approved business travel, subject to applicable limits.

Personal meals outside the permitted limits, alcoholic beverages, and expenses for personal guests are not normally reimbursable.

13.7 Expense Claims

Employees must submit expense claims through the designated expense management system.

Claims should normally be submitted within 30 days of the expense date.

Employees must provide:

- Date of expense
- Business purpose
- Amount
- Appropriate receipts or supporting documents

13.8 Non-Reimbursable Expenses

The following expenses are generally not reimbursable:

- Personal entertainment
- Fines or penalties
- Personal purchases
- Expenses for family members
- Alcohol unless specifically permitted for an approved business event
- Unauthorized upgrades
- Expenses unrelated to company business

13.9 Corporate Cards

Employees issued a company credit or corporate card must use it only for authorized business expenses.

Employees are responsible for submitting supporting documentation and reporting lost cards immediately.

Personal purchases must not be charged to a corporate card.

13.10 Expense Exceptions

Exceptions to expense limits require prior approval from the appropriate authority.

An exception may be considered when:

- No reasonable lower-cost option was available.
- Business requirements required additional expenditure.
- An emergency occurred.
- The expense was specifically authorized.

Approval of one exception does not establish a permanent entitlement.

13.11 Travel During Personal Leave

Business travel must not be combined with personal travel in a way that creates additional company costs without prior approval.

Any additional personal travel expenses are the employee's responsibility.

13.12 Expense Fraud

Employees must not submit false, duplicate, inflated, or misleading expense claims.

Submitting fraudulent expenses may result in disciplinary action and recovery of the amount involved.

13.13 Responsibilities

Employees are responsible for obtaining approvals, maintaining receipts, submitting accurate claims, and complying with applicable expense limits.

Questions regarding reimbursement should be directed to the Finance or People & Culture team.

14. Performance Management

14.1 Purpose

Nexora's performance management process helps employees understand expectations, receive feedback, identify development opportunities, and contribute to organizational goals.

Performance evaluation is based on the requirements of the employee's role and applicable performance objectives.

14.2 Performance Objectives

Employees may receive defined objectives at the beginning of a performance cycle.

Objectives may relate to:

- Quality of work
- Delivery timelines
- Technical or functional performance
- Customer outcomes
- Team contribution
- Professional development

Objectives may be updated when business or project requirements change.

14.3 Performance Reviews

Formal performance reviews are generally conducted twice each year.

Employees may also receive informal feedback throughout the year.

Performance reviews may consider both results achieved and how the employee performed their responsibilities.

14.4 Performance Ratings

Where a formal rating system is used, employees may receive ratings based on achievement of their objectives and demonstrated behaviours.

Performance ratings may influence decisions regarding:

- Development plans
- Recognition
- Promotions
- Compensation reviews

A particular rating does not automatically guarantee a promotion or salary increase.

14.5 Performance Feedback

Managers are expected to provide employees with constructive and timely feedback.

Employees are encouraged to discuss:

- Progress toward objectives
- Challenges
- Support required
- Career goals
- Development opportunities

Employees may ask their manager for clarification when expectations are unclear.

14.6 Performance Improvement

When performance does not meet expectations, the manager may establish a Performance Improvement Plan (PIP).

A PIP may specify:

- Performance concerns
- Expected improvements
- Actions required

- Review period
- Support available
- Consequences of failing to improve

The duration and structure of a PIP may vary depending on the circumstances.

14.7 Promotions

Promotions may be considered based on factors including:

- Performance
- Demonstrated skills
- Experience
- Role requirements
- Business needs
- Availability of suitable positions

Employees are not entitled to a promotion solely because they have completed a specified period of service.

14.8 Employee Responsibilities

Employees are expected to understand their objectives, participate in performance discussions, respond to feedback, and actively work toward agreed development goals.

15. Learning and Development

15.1 Purpose

Nexora encourages employees to continuously develop their technical, functional, leadership, and professional skills.

Learning opportunities may be provided through internal programs or approved external providers.

15.2 Training Programs

Employees may participate in:

- Technical training
- Professional skills workshops
- Leadership programs
- Compliance training
- Role-specific training

- External courses and conferences

Certain training programs may be mandatory based on the employee's role.

15.3 Mandatory Training

Employees must complete mandatory training within the deadlines communicated by the company.

Mandatory training may include:

- Information security
- Data privacy
- Workplace conduct
- Compliance
- Health and safety

Failure to complete required training may result in escalation to the employee's manager.

15.4 Professional Certifications

Employees may request company support for relevant professional certifications.

Prior approval is normally required before registering for a reimbursable certification.

Reimbursement is subject to the applicable certification reimbursement policy and available budget.

15.5 Learning Expenses

Approved learning expenses may be reimbursed when the employee meets the applicable eligibility and approval requirements.

Employees must retain receipts and submit claims through the designated expense process.

15.6 Development Discussions

Employees are encouraged to discuss career goals and development needs with their managers.

Development plans may include:

- Training
- Mentoring
- New responsibilities
- Internal projects
- Job-shadowing opportunities
- Certifications

Participation in a development activity does not guarantee promotion.

16. Employee Grievances

16.1 Purpose

Nexora provides employees with channels to raise workplace concerns, complaints, or grievances and seeks to address them fairly and appropriately.

Employees are encouraged to raise concerns as early as reasonably possible.

16.2 Types of Grievances

Employees may raise concerns relating to:

- Workplace behaviour
- Harassment or discrimination
- Compensation or payroll
- Leave and attendance
- Working conditions
- Managerial concerns
- Workplace safety
- Policy violations
- Conflicts of interest

Certain matters may be handled under specialized procedures, such as the Anti-Harassment Policy.

16.3 Raising a Grievance

Employees may raise a grievance through:

1. Their reporting manager
2. People & Culture
3. The designated Ethics or Compliance contact
4. An applicable confidential reporting channel

Employees should provide relevant facts, dates, documents, or other supporting information where available.

16.4 Confidentiality

Nexora will handle grievance information as confidentially as reasonably possible.

Information may be shared with individuals who need it to review, investigate, or resolve the matter or where disclosure is required by law.

16.5 Investigation and Resolution

Depending on the nature of the grievance, Nexora may conduct an investigation before determining an appropriate resolution.

Employees involved in an investigation are expected to cooperate honestly.

The company may communicate the outcome to the employee to the extent permitted by confidentiality and applicable law.

16.6 Non-Retaliation

Employees must not face retaliation for raising a concern in good faith or participating in an authorized investigation.

Suspected retaliation should be reported to People & Culture or through the designated reporting channel.

16.7 Escalation

If an employee believes their concern has not been appropriately addressed, they may escalate the matter to People & Culture or the next appropriate level of management.

The escalation process may vary depending on the nature of the complaint.

17. Disciplinary Policy

17.1 Purpose

Nexora expects employees to comply with company policies, employment terms, and applicable laws.

The disciplinary process exists to address misconduct, policy violations, and serious performance or conduct concerns fairly and consistently.

17.2 Examples of Misconduct

Examples may include:

- Falsifying company records
- Unauthorized disclosure of confidential information
- Harassment or discrimination
- Theft or misuse of company property
- Fraudulent expense claims
- Unauthorized access to systems
- Repeated unauthorized absence
- Serious workplace misconduct

- Violation of information security requirements

This list is not exhaustive.

17.3 Disciplinary Process

Depending on the circumstances, the company may:

1. Review the reported concern.
2. Conduct an investigation.
3. Give the employee an opportunity to provide an explanation.
4. Determine appropriate corrective or disciplinary action.
5. Communicate the decision to the employee.

The process may vary depending on the seriousness and nature of the matter.

17.4 Disciplinary Actions

Possible actions include:

- Counselling
- Verbal or written warning
- Performance or conduct improvement plan
- Suspension where permitted
- Termination of employment
- Other action permitted by company policy or applicable law

The company may consider the seriousness of the violation, previous conduct, intent, impact, and other relevant circumstances.

17.5 Serious Misconduct

Serious misconduct may result in significant disciplinary action, including termination of employment, subject to applicable law and company procedures.

Examples include fraud, serious harassment, violence, deliberate security breaches, or theft.

17.6 Employee Response

Employees involved in a disciplinary process will generally have an opportunity to provide relevant information or an explanation before a final decision is made, subject to the circumstances.

Employees must cooperate honestly with authorized investigations.

17.7 Appeals

Where an appeal process is available, an employee may request a review of a disciplinary decision through the designated People & Culture process.

The applicable appeal deadline and procedure will be communicated with the disciplinary decision.

18. Resignation and Separation

18.1 Resignation

Employees who wish to resign must submit their resignation through the designated company process.

The resignation should be submitted in accordance with the notice requirements stated in the employee's employment agreement.

18.2 Notice Period

The applicable notice period is determined by the employee's employment agreement.

Employees should review their agreement or contact People & Culture to confirm their notice requirement.

Different notice periods may apply during probation, after confirmation, or for different employment categories.

18.3 Notice Period Responsibilities

During the notice period, employees are expected to:

- Continue performing their responsibilities.
- Maintain normal attendance.
- Complete assigned work where reasonably possible.
- Assist with knowledge transfer.
- Return company property.
- Complete required exit procedures.

18.4 Early Release

An employee may request an earlier release from the notice period.

Approval depends on business requirements, the employee's employment agreement, and applicable company procedures.

Employees should not assume that an early-release request will be approved.

18.5 Notice Period Leave

Employees may request leave during the notice period in accordance with the Leave Policy.

Approval is subject to business requirements and applicable employment terms.

Extended leave during the notice period may affect the final working date where permitted by the applicable agreement or policy.

18.6 Knowledge Transfer

Employees leaving Nexora are expected to provide reasonable knowledge transfer before their final working date.

Knowledge transfer may include:

- Documentation of ongoing work
- Handover of responsibilities
- Sharing relevant project information
- Explaining operational procedures
- Assisting the replacement or assigned team member

18.7 Return of Company Property

Before separation, employees must return company property assigned to them.

This may include:

- Laptop
- Mobile device
- Access card
- Documents
- Storage devices
- Other company equipment

Access to company systems may be disabled as part of the separation process.

18.8 Exit Interview

Nexora may request departing employees to participate in an exit interview.

The purpose is to understand the employee's experience and identify opportunities for organizational improvement.

Participation requirements may vary depending on the circumstances.

18.9 Final Settlement

The final settlement may include applicable:

- Salary up to the final working date
- Approved reimbursements
- Eligible leave encashment
- Applicable variable compensation
- Statutory payments
- Authorized recoveries or deductions

The timing of final settlement depends on completion of required exit procedures and applicable legal requirements.

18.10 Employment Documents

After completing the required separation process, eligible employees may receive applicable employment documents such as:

- Relieving documentation
- Experience or service certificate
- Final settlement statement
- Tax or payroll-related documents

Employees should ensure that their personal contact information remains updated so that required documents can be delivered after separation.

18.11 Termination by the Company

Nexora may terminate employment in accordance with the employee's employment agreement, company policies, and applicable law.

Termination may occur due to reasons including:

- Serious misconduct
- Persistent performance concerns
- Business restructuring
- Role elimination
- Other legitimate employment-related reasons

Applicable notice, compensation, and procedural requirements will be determined according to the relevant circumstances.

18.12 Abandonment of Employment

Failure to report to work or communicate with the company for an extended period without authorization may be treated as abandonment of employment, subject to applicable law and company procedures.

The company may attempt to contact the employee before taking appropriate action.

18.13 Post-Employment Responsibilities

Certain obligations may continue after employment ends.

These may include obligations relating to:

- Confidentiality
- Intellectual property
- Return of company property
- Protection of company and client information
- Other contractual obligations

Employees should review their employment agreement for obligations that continue after separation.
